THERE'S A DIFFERENCE.

At Least One Man Found "Gettin Married and Bein Married" to Be Different.

One day I was seated under a tree by a spring on the banks of the Cumberland river not far from where it breaks through the Pine mountains, taking a resting spell, when a young farmer rode by with a buxom country girl behind him on the same horse. He pulled up and asked me if I wouldn't "hand the gal up a drink of water," and while I was doing the gallant we talked.

"Fine weather fer gettin married, ain't it?" he said, with a grin that gave the procession away.

"Shet up, Jim," said the girl, giving him a jerk.

"Ah, you're to be married, are you?" I remarked.

"Yes," he said; "me and Callie has about reckoned thar ain't anything better fer us to do."

"Well, I admire your taste," I ventured, with a smile at the girl.

"Fine gal, ain't she?" he said admiringly. "Had mighty hard work to git her. Every fellow on the crick wanted her. Had to coax fer six months and finally promise her this hoss we'er on afore she shuck the other chaps an took me. Mebbe she showed pore jedgement," and he laughed and chucked her under the chin; "but you can't allus tell what sort of pertaters is in the hill by the looks of the vine."

I assured him that both of them had done well, and wishing them joy, they rode on and I never expected to see them again, but I did.

One Sunday morning about three months after that I started out from the place where I was abiding for a week, to a little church where a meeting was to be held. Half way there I overtook my bridal party, pretty much as they were at the first meeting, only Callie was in front and Jim behind.

"Good morning," I said, really glad to see them.

"Howd'y? Howd'y" they both replied, and we went along to the meeting house, chatting pleasantly, with Callie doing the most of it. Arrived, we hitched our horses, and before going in Jim called me to one side.

"I s'pose," he said, "you noticed I was ridin behind this mornin."

I admitted as much, but said I had not thought of it especially.

He shook his head gravely.

"Gittin married an bein married is dogboned different, mister," he said sententiously. "If they wuzn't I wouldn't be ridin behind."

Before I had a chance to offer any consolation Jim hurried along to catch up with Callie at the door, and I had something to think about besides the sermon.—Detroit Free Press.

Mice Eat the Moon.

A curious Indian legend was told to some people way out in Omaha by a full blooded Sioux, who lives at Pine Ridge agency.

He said the belief was that every time a new moon appeared it was the signal for all the mice in the country to gather themselves together in one spot. When they assembled they then separated into four great armies. One army went to the north, another to the south, a third to the east and a fourth to the west.

These armies of mice traveled until they reached the point where from the place of starting, the heavens seemed to touch the earth. Then they climbed up the sky until they came to the moon, which by this time was what we call full. All of the four armies then commenced nibbling at Luna, and when they had eaten her all up the mice would scamper back down the heavens to the earth and wait for her to show herself again, when the journey and the nibbling would be repeated by the mice; and this is what the Indians of early days believed was the cause of the moon growing old and finally disappearing.—Goldthwaite's Geographical Magazine.

The Cow Was Not Dismayed.

A friend had landed his maiden salmon, and having hidden it with the greatest care among some rushes proceeded to fish down the river, intending to pick it up on his return in the evening. What was his disgust when he found an old highland cow making a meal of his precious capture, little but the head being left. In his exasperation he seized a trout which chanced to be in the basket and hurled it violently at the head of the unconscious animal, striking her full in the face; but the old cow, not the least disconcerted, quietly picked up the trout and swallowed that also, thus remaining absolute victrix on the battlefield.—Pall Mall Budget.

For Oil Expansion.

Petroleum, when stored in bulk, either in tank steamships or in tanks on shore, must be provided with means for expansion when the temperature rises. A drawback in appliances has been the admitting of air on the contraction of the oil. The manager of large works in West Hartlepool, England, has devised an apparatus that will prevent the access of air. In cylindrical domes on the top of the tanks he fits pistons the rods projecting through the tops and moving freely. The pistons rest on the surface of the oil and rise and fall when it expands and contracts.—New York Sun.

"IT MIGHT BE A GOOD DEAL WORSE."

The Black Bootblack's Philosophy of Hot Weather and Shipwreck.

"Good morning, suh; have a shine, suh?" said the black bootblack, as he saw one of his regular customers coming down the corridor. The regular customer sat down in the chair, inwardly prayed that none of his friends might come along before he got out of it and made some original observation about the weather.

"Yes, suh," replied the bootblack; "it is sutn'ly a very hot day. I—well—no, suh, I won't say nothing about it, because it might be a good deal wus. There might be a big flood or a wind to blow us all away. Yes, suh, that's what I always say when I hear people talkin about how bad things is.

"I says, 'Don't you go and say nothing, because it might be a good deal wus.' I remember one time I was out sailin with six other people and four of 'em was ladies; yes, suh; that was on the James river, and a squall struck the boat and she was just tippin all 'round, and the ladies, they was just scared to death and they all yelled that we got to go back.

"But, I says: 'Don't say nothing; it might be a good deal wus. If we try to go back the wind'll hit us harder and we might tip over.' But it wa'n't any use; the ladies kept hollerin that we got to go back, and the captain put her 'round and she got caught right between two waves and she went to the bottom and five of 'em was drowned. Yes, suh; all the ladies was drowned and the captain was drowned. I just struck out for the shore, I tell you. I wa'n't goin to get drowned for nobody.

"Could I save any of the others? I didn't see none of the others; I didn't want to see none of 'em. I just got to the shore; that's all I wanted. Then I found a man with a boat and we started out, and in a minute we see the other man comin down the river and we pulled him in, and the ones that was drowned, some of 'em wasn't found for two days, and then they was 'way down the river.

"That's what I say, as long as I'm alive it might be wus. I never hurt nobody, and I don't want nobody to touch me. Anybody can steal my money or my clothes or anything; I just say, 'Give me my life.' They can have anything I got, only don't hurt me. I know I got to die some time, that's certain, but I don't want nobody to murder me. No change, suh? Thank you, suh. Shine!"—New York Tribune.

Dialects of China.

It is true that the inhabitants of Peking, Canton, Shanghai, Futwa and Amoy speak Chinese. But as to other parts of the country, it is also true that a citizen of the places named cannot understand the inhabitants any more easily than can a Berliner an Englishman, or a Parisian a Dutchman. This the position of the Chinaman in his own country, where various so called dialects are spoken, is rather peculiar. The Chinese dialects have nothing in common with the patois, or conversational forms of language. They are used by the highest and lowest classes the savants and uneducated, the officials and the coolies. The dialect is a language by itself. The various dialect forms, it is true, are related to one another in somewhat the same manner as the Arabic to the Hebrew, Syrian and other Semitic tongues, or German to English, Dutch, Danish, Swedish, etc.

If it is desirable to classify the numerous dialects they may be divided into the Canton, Hakka, Amoy, Swatow, Shanghai, Ningho, the Hainanese and the Mandarin. The youngest of these dialects is the Mandarin. Mandarin, contrary to the general impression, is not the universal language of China. The Canton tongue resembles the ancient Chinese spoken 3,000 years ago more closely than the Mandarin. The Hakka shows also traces of great antiquity. It is much older than the Mandarin, almost equaling in point of age the Canton tongue, or Cantonese. The same thing may be said of the Swatow, Amoy and Shanghai dialects. In general we may say that the languages spoken in southeastern China show traces of the ancient Chinese tongue, while the Mandarin tongue is modern.—Ostasintischer Lloyd.

The Ethics of the Scarfpin.

With the regulation Teck, palpably madeup scarf, that is not an imitation of any known that may be made by the wearer, the scarfpin is stringently tabooed. It enjoys in such a pseudo-utilization almost as much significance as it would if stuck in the middle of a pincushion, and indeed about the same effect on the beholder.

The four-in-hand or cravat when tied in this way requires that the pin be not inserted in one corner, as was permissible when the smaller scarfs and lilliputian pins were worn. Nor in the middle of the crosspiece, with a trite and stilted suggestiveness. But in order to come as near as possible to the center of the space seen through the waistcoat opening, and because it appears to give a savor of utility in seeming to hold the knot intact, there is the best excuse for having it puncture the middle of the tie, just upon the lower edge of the crossfold.

Never with a Windsor tie or a cravat have the slightest indication of jewelry.—Clothier and Furnisher.

Funeral Thieves.

Criminals have as many grades of respectability among themselves as has the moral portion of the community. They, too, have their Four Hundred, their upper ten, their middle grade lawbreakers, and then the very dregs of the thieving class. And way down in the scale, beneath the contempt of even the humble burglar, the lowly pickpocket, and the contemptible hatrack sneak, stands, lone and forsaken by all evildoers, the "funeral thief."

The "funeral thief" is the poltroon of the criminal classes. Little conscience as most thieves possess, he possesses the least. He shrinks from no desecration. No superstition causes him to recoil. He robs the living as they weep over the dead. Few criminals would stoop to so low a crime; consequently there are not many funeral thieves. But what few there are are active.

Their method of work is extremely simple. Usually they go in pairs; sometimes there are three or four together. Early in the morning they scan the death columns of the newspapers. From the announcements of funerals for the day they make up a visiting list. They select those where the victims of the grim reaper were men of about their own age. They visit the home where the partly open cask is resting while friends gaze at the features of the departed. Their right to be present is never questioned; they are taken, as a matter of course, for friends of the dead. They pass the coffin, pausing for a few moments in pretended tearful contemplation of the cold features, and in the slight jam that is sure to follow such a pause—and while many mourners are in tears—the thieves abstract the pocketbooks of all within their reach. Women are their subjects, and if tears are not plentiful the thieves will themselves pretend to weep. This is sure to prove effectual.

Thus do these "funeral thieves" work. It does not take them long to go through the pockets of half a dozen persons, and then they are off to the next house on the list, where the mode of operation is repeated. No wonder other thieves regard them with contempt.—Chicago Tribune.

American Opals.

An opal, found and cut as a gem in this country, was sold by a jeweler in this city the other day for $500. It was obtained from a newly discovered mine in the state of Washington, near the Idaho line. At that place, which has been called Gem City, the volcanic rocks are honeycombed with cavities that contain small nodules of this precious variety of hydrated quartz. Many of them are of great beauty and value.

Speaking of this discovery of American opals, Mr. George F. Kunz, the expert in gems employed by Tiffany & Co., exhibited to the reporter the great Hope opal, one of the most celebrated in the world. It formerly belonged to Henry Philip Hope, the Dutch banker, who owned the finest collection of precious stones ever got together. He liquidated the national debt of Brazil and took his pay in diamonds from that country, which originally inspired him with his hobby. Among the well known gems possessed by him was the Hope diamond, a blue-white stone of forty-four carats, valued at $100,000; likewise the largest existing pearl, drop shaped, which weighed over three ounces, surmounted in the setting by a coronet of diamonds.

The opal referred to, though of Mexican origin, is said to have been among the ornaments of a Persian shrine in the Seventeenth century. It represents the sun with a full face carved on its surface, the rays being supplied by the antique gold setting. As is very common with Mexican opals, it is badly flawed—in fact, so cracked that it would probably fall to pieces if the setting were removed. It is oval in shape and its longest diameter is about an inch.—New York Sun.

The Loquacious Barber.

The loquacity of a barber gives the satirical Persian the opportunity of many witty proverbs, and all at the barber's expense. The Hindoo has as much dread of his tattling propensities as the European, but it is currently believed their gossip saved many a life during the terrible year 1857-8. The chatter of the bazaar the barber has on his tongue tip, and the slightest encouragement to unloosen the bag wherein he stores his tales is gladly seized.

The injustice of the petty native judges, the exacting demands of the cantonment magistrate, the monetary embarrassments of some young sub in one of the regiments, the flirtation of a married belle are duly narrated, and even the contents of the letters which pass between the pair can by astute questioning become the common property of an entire station.—San Francisco Chronicle.

A Regal Dish.

Of course every one knows how the favorite English dish of beef came to be called "sirloin." It is not, however, equally well known that at Chingford, Essex, is a place called "Friday Hill House," in one of the rooms of which is an oak table, with a brass plate let into it, inscribed with these words, "All lovers of roast beef will like to know that on this table a lion was knighted by King James I on his return from hunting in Epping forest."—Million.

How's Your Liver?

Is the Oriental salutation, knowing that good health cannot exist without a healthy Liver. When the Liver is torpid the Bowels are sluggish and constipated, the food lies in the stomach undigested, poisoning the blood; frequent headache ensues; a feeling of lassitude, despondency and nervousness indicate how the whole system is deranged. Simmons Liver Regulator has been the means of restoring more people to health and happiness by giving them a healthy Liver than any agency known on earth. It acts with extraordinary power and efficacy.

NEVER BEEN DISAPPOINTED.

As a general family remedy for Dyspepsia, Torpid Liver, Constipation, etc., I hardly ever use anything else, and have never been disappointed in the effect produced; it seems to be almost a perfect cure for all diseases of the Stomach and Bowels. ☞

CLEVELAND WINS

The Democrats Make a Clean Sweep.

It is Not What they Have Won But What They Haven't Won.

The general result of the election last Tuesday was a complete victory for the Democrats. They scooped up almost everything from Maine to Georgia. In their success they remind us of a Congressman from the backwoods of one of the Western States, who upon his arrival in Washington made a bee line for Williardi's dining parlors. A waiter seated the hungry Congressman at one of the tables and handed him the bill of fare. Hastily glancing over the good things in sight he exclaimed "Gimme all." Thus it is with the Democrats, the hungry fellows went for the whole bill of fare and it now looks as though they had got it too.

The hop yield last year for the Pacific Coast was 94,000 bales. The outlook is bright for as large a crop this year. It is thought that California will have a heavier yield than Washington and so rank as the largest hop-growing State on the coast.

The California State Fruitgrowers' Convention, under the auspices of the State Board of Horticulture, will meet in San Jose on November 15th, remaining in session four days.

Jesse Grant, son of the late Gen. Grant, has taken Mr. James Gamble's residence at Piedmont for a year and it is expected that Mrs. General Grant will join her son and daughter-in-law before the end of the year.

About 15,000 voters have registered in Seattle this year, an increase of 4,000 over two years ago.

Grapes in Cicilus Valley, Wash., are so plentiful that they are being fed to hogs for lack of a market.

Thanksgiving Day.

President Harrison issued the following proclamation last Friday

The gifts of God to our people during the past year have been so abundant and so special that this spirit of devout thanksgiving awaits not the call, but only the appointment of the day when it may have the common expression. He has stayed pestilence at our doors; He has given us more love for free civil institutions, in the creation of which His directing providence is conspicuous; He has awakened deeper reverence for the law; He has widened our philanthropy by call to succor distress in other lands; He has blessed our schools, and is bringing forward a patriotic and Godfearing generation to execute his great and benevolent designs for our country; He has given us a great increase in material wealth, and a wide diffusion of contentment and comfort in the homes of our people; He has given his peace to the sorrowing.

Now, therfore, I, Benjamin Harrison, President of the United States, do call upon all our people to observe, as we have been wont, Thursday, the twenty fourth day of this month of November, as a day of thanksgiving to God for his mercies, and of supication for his continued care and grace.

On the way to Paradise.

Let us hope that the people who habitually disregard their health will reach that desirable place, and avoid the locality which is less desirable as an eternal residence on account of the heat and surroundings generally. But while we tarry in this vale of tears, why should we voluntarily endure the tortures of dyspepsia, when a systematic use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will rid us of the atrocious malady which—unless physicians are very much at fault—tends to shorten the term of our existence. Heartburn, biliousness, constipation almost always accompany this complaint and are symptomatic of it. These are all extinguished by the Bitters, which also conquers completely malaria, rheumatism, nervousness and debility. Since the appearance of "la grippe" it has shown a singular mastery over this formidable complaint that has carried off so many of our brightest and best.

A Little Girl's Experience in a Lighthouse.

Mr. and Mrs. Loren Trescott are keepers of the Gov Lighthouse at Sand Beach, Mich. and are blessed with a daughter, four years old. Last April she was taken down with Measles, followed with a dreadful Cough and turning into a fever. Doctors at home and at Detroit treated her, but in vain, she grew worse rapidly, until she was a mere handful of bones." Then she tried Dr. King's New Discovery and after the use of two and a half bottles, was completely cured. They say Dr King's New Discovery is worth its weight in gold, yet you may get a trial bottle free at Ed. Wagner's Drug Store.

His First Battle.

The name of Durosier deserves to be historic as that of one of the bravest of French soldiers, although the noble young fellow who bore it saw but one battle. Timoleon Durosier was one of the first students admitted to the Ecole Polytechnique, and at the period of the invasion was gazetted to an ensignship.

At the battle of Montmirail he chanced to be in attendance on the emperor at the moment when it became essential to dispatch an order to one of the generals of division.

Napoleon, summoning him to his side, gave him instructions to deliver it without delay.

"Spare neither yourself nor your horse, sir," he said sternly, "for there is not a moment to lose, and return at once and report to me that my order has been obeyed."

Durosier galloped away amid a shower of shot and shells, and within a quarter of an hour was again beside the emperor.

"You have behaved well, monsieur," said Napoleon, when he had received his report. "You have a stout heart and a clear head, though you are still only a youngster. I give you your captain's brevet and attach you to my person. What is your name?"

"Durosier, sire."

"On what occasion have I before heard it?"

"I was the colonel of the boy battalion, your majesty."

"I remember. Well, that is additional reason why I should attach you to my person."

"It is too late, sire."

"Too late, Captain Durosier? And why?"

"Sire, they have hit me," and he reeled in his saddle and fell heavily forward dead.

"So young; his first battlefield!" exclaimed the emperor, bending over him. "Poor boy!"—Youth's Companion.

A Dreadful Mistake.

"But I am not dead, I assure you!" Such was the cry of an unfortunate man lying on the bed of sickness on beholding a couple of undertaker's assistants enter his chamber with a coffin, which they deposited on the floor. He was suffering from a severe chill and was very feverish and out of sorts, and the unexpected appearance of the croquemorts with their lugubrious burden was scarcely calculated to exercise an exhilarating effect on his spirits. The two men, who were out of breath with their exertions, and had not time to glance round the room, started back in affright as they saw what they imagined to be the corpse raising itself in the bed and with wild gesticulations bidding them to depart. They were about to beat a hasty retreat, leaving the coffin behind them, with the conviction that they had had an interview with a ghost, when the invalid's wife rushed in.

"Is nobody dead here?" asked one of the undertaker's assistants, plucking up courage at the arrival of the lady, respecting whose claims to be classed among the living not a shadow of doubt could be entertained for a moment, as she was manifestly in the enjoyment of the most robust health. "Nothing of the kind. Where in the world do you think you are?" was the prompt reply of the buxom dame. "At 39," answered the bewildered croquemort. "Why, don't you know this is 35?" said the lady indignantly.

The two men took up the coffin, and with many apologies left the scene of this very unpleasant adventure as fast as their legs could carry them.—Paris Cor. London Telegraph.

Silk Culture in Georgia.

All about the old church at the present Ebenezer there are still mulberry trees, no doubt the neglected descendants of the original planting a century and a half ago. Indeed, the present Salzburgers have not quite given up the working in silk. I stopped at the home of a venerable couple, where I saw the plain and well worn spinning reels used for this purpose. There is, however, no longer any weaving of silk in all the region. The only article manufactured is fishing lines. These are of the finest and strongest quality, and are in great demand in Savannah.

Some of the silk goods manufactured by Oglethorpe's colonists commanded a high price in the markets of the Old World. The queen of England on one occasion surprised her guests by wearing a dress made entirely of the silk woven by the Georgia weavers.—Rev. John F. Hurst in Harper's.

The Cashgirls' Friend.

The noon closing of one of the large stores on Fifth avenue compelled me to wait outside for a friend.

In less than ten minutes the crowd changed from shoppers to the shopgirls. How they chattered! How happy they appeared! A half holiday meant a great deal to them.

Presently five little cashgirls came up behind me, and from the giggles and whisperings I learned that one had found a package in the store and had escaped with it undetected.

They speculated as to its possible contents, and finally the finder agreed to "divide" if they would not tell on her. "Honest true." So from under her skirts she brought a small parcel.

I confess I, too, was curious to know what it held. The finder of the parcel opened it, and loud shrieks and roars of laughter came from those five young throats as a pair of the smallest size of boys' bathing tights was held up to view.—Cor. New York Recorder.

Men and Piano Playing.

"I can remember," said the old musician as he fumbled sheets of music, "when to see a young man who was not a professional musician playing the piano or the violin was a particularly interesting and unusual spectacle. I mean of course in this country. On the other side it was not considered an effeminate accomplishment, as it was in the United States in the early years of this century, to possess an intimate and practical acquaintance with some musical instrument. The guitar was the only instrument upon which a man could play in those times without subjecting himself to unpleasant criticism. But, bless my soul, everybody plays something nowadays. I have of a class of twenty-two pupils, seven young men who are really clever piano players; and there are young women who excel as amateur violinists."—Minneapolis Times.

A Matter of Insight.

A minister in the east said: "My brethren, the collection will now be taken for my expenses to a trip, for I am going away for my health. The more I receive the longer I can stay." The largest collection ever made in that church was taken. And now the question under discussion is whether the size of the collection was a compliment to the preacher or much the reverse.—Louisville Western Recorder.

A Fight in the Treatment.

A certain Irish orator, whose daughter was going to marry Emmett, died of consumption. The day before he died some friends asked him how his cold was. "It ought to be all right," he answered, "for I've been up the entire night practicing on it."—San Francisco Argonaut.

An Interesting Lecture Before the High School.

On Friday afternoon last Dr. W. K. Vance delivered a lecture before the High school of Sonoma upon a "Literary Bird's-eye View of the British Isles." At the outset, the lecturer observed that the "tight little island" of Grert Britain has been a theatre of vast enterprises in the realm of thought. As there was no precedent for the British empire save that of Rome, so the language and literature of the English were paralleled only by those of Ancient Greece. Every nation has an articulate voice. England speaks out in Shakspere, Scotland in Scott, Ireland in Burke. With the aid of a map and pictures, the lecturer described the chief scenes of literary interest—Westminister Abbey, Oxford and Cambridge, the Lake district, Edinburgh, the haunts of Burns, the "deserted village." Coming to the Emerald Isles, it was claimed that her representative men—Burke, Goldsmith and Sheridan—had exhibited power with the tongue and versatility with the pen.

In conclusion Dr. Vance said that the scholars were now mainly concerned with the "literature of knowledge." In after life he hoped they would contract the "literature of power" as manifested in Homer, Virgil, Dante, Gœthe, Camoens and others of the supreme masters.

After the address Professors Abshire and Hastin, in the name of the pupils, tendered a vote of thanks to the lecturer.

Birthday Party.

The fourteenth anniversary of the birth of Miss Bertha Laughlin was celebrated last Wednesday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Abshire on Napa street. The cottage was tastefully decorated with flowers and ivy in honor of the occasion. Before nine o'clock between thirty and forty young lads and lassies assembled, each bearing some little token of remembrance. The evening passed pleasantly in playing games, singing and dancing. The refreshments served were of the choicest variety consisting of tropical fruit, French candy, nuts cake, coffee and sandwiches. The presents received were both useful and ornamental. It was after midnight when the guests departed for their homes. Among those present were the following: The Misses Daisy and Annie Van Housen of San Francisco, Julie Granice, Grace Champlin, Annie Dunn, Winkie Wilson, Pauline Bates, Bertha Campbell, Jennie Gaines, Zelma Johnson, Elsie Appleton, Gracie Carmer, Clare Hope, Cecilia Granice, Ella Durant, Stella Johnson, Bertha Manuel, Rubie Taylor, Ralph Morris, William Prunty, Will Dunn, Harry Dunn, Peter Gordenko, Charley Champlin, Carol Prunty, Adam Adler, Harvey Perkins, Skelton Glaister, Clarence Cheny, Ernest Campbell, Eddie Morris.

The Victims of the Recent Fire.

The investigation conducted in this place on Friday afternoon of last week by Coroner Blaney to inquire into the death of the two tramps who lost their lives by being burned to death in the lock-up on the morning of the 3d inst., elicited nothing new. How the fire started and who the unfortunate men were will forever remain a mystery. The headless and armless trunks of the poor fellows were buried in unmarked graves in Mountain Cemetery on Saturday.

Generous Sonoma Valley.

The citizens of Sonoma and vicinity hardly before the smoke from the smouldering embers from the recent fire on Broadway had died away had contributed to R. B. Lyon, the principal sufferer, the sum of three hundred dollars toward starting him in business again. The people of this valley have always been noted for their generosity to those in distress, and this is only one instance in hundreds where they have responded in a like manner.

COUNTY ELECTION.

Cady and the Bolting Democrats Who Supported Him Get Badly Left.

Sam Allen Elected Sheriff --- The Democrats Gobble Up Everything Else in Sight.

The election in Sonoma, San Luis, Agua Caliente and Glen Ellen passed off without adventure last Tuesday.

The contest for the Assembly between J. C. Sims, Democrat, and M. K. Cady, Republican, was an exciting one. Mr. Sims was supported by many of the leading Republicans of Sonoma Township and in the four precincts of the same received the votes of 75 Republicans, who preferred him to their own party man.

On the other hand Democrats to the number of eleven in Sonoma and 25 in Agua Caliente voted for Mr. Cady.

These latter, now that the Democracy is on top, must feel very small indeed for resorting to coyote tactics to defeat Mr. Sims, than whom no better or purer man was ever nominated for an office in this county.

Mr. Sims defeats Mr. Cady by over 377 votes. Mr. Sims carried almost every precinct in the district.

The hole that had been prepared for the editor of this paper by Cady because he refused to be blackmailed into his support, and into which he was to force us to crawl into after election, can now be utilized by that person himself, as every precinct in Sonoma Township, if we except Agua Caliente, went against him.

In the county the Democrats gobble up everything except the office of Sheriff by majorities ranging from 50 to 500.

Sam Allen, the Republican nominee for Sheriff, received a majority of between 600 and 700.

Geo. W. Sparks, the genial Democratic County Committeeman now struts around with a red rooster on his hat and with a smile on his phiz that is very tantalizing to the "other fellows."

Ah Gar, the Chinese with no flies on him, is disconsolate and says: "No good! Me no sabe!"

HON. J. C. SIMS.

He Acknowledges the Receipt of the Gold Medal.

By request of a number of the friends of J. C. Sims, Assemblyman elect, in this place, we publish the following acknowledgment of the receipt of the gold medal voted him at the recent Catholic Fair held in this place as being the most popular candidate running for office in this Assembly district. The letter is addressed to one of our leading citizens:

MY DEAR SIR:—I received a very handsome gold medal from you yesterday together with a kind and much-appreciated letter. I shall preserve the letter as a kind memento and the medal as a token of my popularity in Sonoma city. The medal is a beautiful one and the recollections which it recalls and revivifies I trust will always be brighter than its polished surface and more lasting than its material substance. Kings sometimes bestow decorations upon those whom they desire to honor but that man is most highly decorated who has the esteem and confidence of his neighbors and friends. Whilst I appreciate the medal most highly I esteem the regard which the people of Sonoma have for me in a much greater degree.

Very respectfully yours,
J. C. SIMS,
Santa Rosa, Nov. 9th, 1892.

Home Patronage.

One of our exchanges condenses a whole volume of truth in the following paragraph:

No paper can be published without home patronage and every man is interested in keeping up a home paper. If a railroad or factory is wanted, the newspapers are expected to work for it. If a public meeting is wanted for any purpose, the newspaper is called upon for a free notice. If any of the societies have a supper or reception of any kind, the newspaper is expected to give the necessary notice. The newspaper must puff the schools and everything else to advance the interests of the business men of the place, and give them a handsome notice when they pass away. And yet some of them do nothing to keep up a home paper.

SONOMA INDEX - TRIBUNE.

SONOMA, SATURDAY, NOV. 12, 1892.

OUR ONLY DAY.

Were this our only day,
Did not our yesterdays and morrows give
To hope and memory their interplay,
How should we bear to live?

Not merely what we are,
But what we were and what we are to be,
Make up our life—the far days each a star,
The near days nebulæ.

At once would love forget
Its keen pursuits and coy delays of bliss,
And its delicious pangs of fond regret,
Were there no day but this.

And who, to win a friend,
Would to the secrets of his heart invite
A fellowship that should begin and end
Between a night and night?

Who, too, would pause to prate
Of insult, or remember slight or scorn,
Who would this night lie down to sleep with hate,
Were there to be no morn?

Who would take heed to wrong,
To misery's complaint or pity's call,
The long wail of the weak against the strong,
If this one day were all?

And what were wealth with shame,
The vanity of office, pride of caste,
The winy sparkle of the bubble fame,
If this day were the last?

Aye, what were all days worth,
Were there no looking backward or before—
If every human life that drops to earth
Were lost for evermore?

But each day is a link
Of days that pass and never pass away;
For memory and hope—to live, to think—
Each is our only day.

The Amber Mines of the Baltic.

Amber is composed of a substance which was long regarded as of mysterious origin. It is now known to be the fossil gum of an extinct kind of pine tree. These pines formed forests thousands of years ago in the neighborhood of the Baltic sea, where the gum which exuded from their bark accumulated in such quantities that it has supplied the markets of the world with amber since the most ancient times. The ancient Greeks got their supply from there and the merchants of Venice during the Middle Ages made regular annual trips to the Baltic for cargoes of amber.

Until recently no other way of obtaining amber was known than to gather such pieces of it as were thrown up on the shore in stormy weather or to dive for it. But today there are great amber mines in the region of the Baltic, which are worked day and night all the year around. The deposits of the fossil gum extend from the very shore of the sea to about a quarter of a mile inland. To keep the water out of the mines, which are below the sea level, pumping has to be kept up all the time.—Interview in Washington Star.

A Corpse's Misplaced Enthusiasm.

It was the rule in Ireland at one time that after an execution the body should hang an hour, but the sheriff, from mistaken lenity, would on some occasions look away after the prisoner had been turned off, while the friends of the culprit would hold up their companion by the waistband of the trousers so that the rope would not press upon his throat.

When the half hour was expired the deceased was put into a cart, which was driven at a gallop along the stony road. The jolting generally brought the prisoner to. One such recovery was so complete that the resuscitated man sat up the coffin and gave three cheers.

One of his friends was so shocked at this indecent conduct that he hit the ex-corpse on the head with his shillalah and finished him. The question then arose whether the assailant could be tried for murder, but it was ruled that no man could be successfully charged with the murder of a man who was already dead in law.—Pearson's Weekly.

A Matter of Opinion.

Time was—and this, too, in modern ages—when no one was considered a scholar unless he could discourse in Greek, and in one age of the world red eyes were in the highest type of beauty. In China now the greatest beauty is the one with the smallest feet. In Peru a lady is not considered dressed unless her face is hidden. A dozen different doctors will maintain conflicting opinions touching both diagnosis and remedy in a sick patient. A story is told of a certain artisan who was designing so simple a thing as an ax helve. Seven different people who professed to know what was the correct thing advised him to make it in seven different ways. He followed no one's advice, but made a perfect helve—this according to his own opinion.—Detroit Free Press.

How Fishermen Are Paid.

The fisherman's life on the banks and the Georges is a very hard one, though they live well on board—better than on shore. They have to, that they may stand the excessive cold; and their pay is like their lives, a floating doubt. The voyage is made on shares. From the gross profits of the catch are deducted the cost of bait and ice, and one-fourth of 1 per cent. for the widows and orphans' fund. One-half of the net "stock," as it is called, goes to the owners of the vessel, the other half to the crew, from which is deducted each man's share of the crew's expenses—that is, cook's wages, water, medicine chest, etc.—R. Cleveland Coxe in Century.

PASTOR KOENIG'S NERVE TONIC

ALAMOSA, COL., Jan., 93. All

My wife was troubled with nervousness about one year before she took Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic, and at that time had very severe attacks of spasm, convulsion and pains in different parts of the body; when in this state her lower jaws would set violently and set sometimes, bite her tongue, breathe heavily, then short, then seemed to stop entirely, get a wild look in her eyes and rolling around, then stop sometimes; it would take two men to hold her in bed, otherwise her body would cramp and be so for two hours. She took but two bottles of the Nerve Tonic, which cured her entirely of all these torments, which myself and wife gladly testify it truly had the desired effect. D. S. M'GILLIS.

Mrs. Ester Devilbiss, 354 S. Tenth street, San Jose, Cal., writes, October 1889: Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic has indeed done wonders in my part of the country. There has been bought in my neighborhood over $75 worth.

NAGLE IN COURT.

In the Justice's Court of Santa Rosa Township, Sonoma County, California.

J. W. RAGSDALE, Plaintiff, vs.
F. G. NAGLE, Defendant.

The plaintiff for cause of action against the defendant, alleges: That on the 16th day of November, 1888, said defendant, F. G. Nagle, received from G. W. Call the sum of one hundred (100) dollars, the property of the Sonoma County Abstract Bureau; that of said money said defendant, Nagle, returned to said Bureau the sum of $20 only, and retained, and ever since has retained, the balance of said $100 to-wit, $80, for his own use, and that no part of said $80 has ever been paid; that said Bureau assigned said claim to plaintiff.

For a further and separate cause of action plaintiff alleges: That defendant is in debted to plaintiff in the sum of $80 for money had and received from G. W. Call, November 16th, 1888, for the use and benefit of the Sonoma County Abstract Bureau, which claim has been assigned to the plaintiff, and that no part of the same has ever been paid.

Wherefore, plaintiff prays for a judgment against defendant for the sum of $80 and costs.

Do Not Fancy

that because the summer is over, the season for recreation is past. From now on until the hot days return, will in many respects be the most delightful part of the year. The tempered atmosphere, pure, and stimulating, has the effect of a strong tonic, and recreation is lots more pleasureable because one can move without melting. Little need to hunt long for a place to go.

THE SIERRA NEVADA

abounds plentifully in interesting features that are to be seen at their best in autumn. From Mount Shasta to Tehachapi are many delightful places, and the difference in latitude causes very little difference in climatic conditions. It is as genial, north as south; the air as balmy and bracing, high or low, and semi-tropical luxuriance marks a wide path for hundreds of miles.

ORANGE GROVES

in Oroville and Auburn are as beautiful and interesting as in Riverside and San Gabriel, and all north and south are in the zenith of their glory in midwinter.

MOUNT SHASTA

is as majestic in November as in May. The Tavern of Castle Crags has grown mere hospitable, if possible. The sublime scenery of has taken on a deeper and richer tint; the air fairly intoxicates; the resorts are so cheerful.

LAKE TAHOE

YOSEMITE VALLEY

will welcome visitors till the last of November, and treat them royally at all times.

The Geysers and Lake County are at their best now. Clear Lake is a charming scene—a rich setting in "America's Switzerland."

ALONG THE SEASIDE

there is no wintry chill. Del Monte is cheery outside and in, and its luxurious comforts never were so attractive. Santa Cruz still has its tide of merry-making visitors. Santa Barbara has become the Mecca of Eastern visitors, fleeing from rigorous winters.

Warm healing waters add health to the cheering comforts of Paso Robles and Byron. A dash in the surf at Santa Monica and Long Beach is as exhilarating in January as in July. The tropical beauties of Palm Valley are never seen to better advantage than now, and those afflicted with lung weaknesses find immediate, often permanent, relief there. The lines of the reach all these points, and for better information concerning them inquire of any of its agents.
